Dated: Feb 25, 2011

New release celebration held in Atlanta for “And He Still Speaks”, book 2 of the 4-part Christian book series entitled “The Fullness of God.”

“And He Still Speaks”, the second book installment of a 4-part series collectively titled, “The Fullness of God” will be officially released to the public on February 26, 2011. The series is presented under the publishing entity of Daughters of Distinction, LLC, a company owned and operated by Overseer Trena Stephenson. According to Stephenson, “{The book} is a reminder to the people of God that the Lord is still speaking to us and it encourages us to quiet down our surroundings so we can hear the voice of God more clearly and accurately. This book is full of personal testimonies and revelation into the facets of God with “He Still Speaks” being the common thread.”

Several contributing authors along with Stephenson and a host of family, friends and supporters will gather for a book release luncheon set to take place at the Ron Anderson Community Center located at 3820 Macedonia Rd., Powder Springs, GA on Saturday, February 26, 2011 at 11am. The luncheon is also part of a 2-day conference hosted by Abundant Reign Ministry (Senior Pastor, Dedric D. Perry.)

The new release is available for purchase at <http://www.dofdllc.com>. A portion of all proceeds from book sales will be donated to Humanity Healing Foundation.
